

THE NEW PARTY.

Opinions of the President—Predictions of His Future Policy—The Philadelphia Convention—What Mr. Johnson Thinks of Its Action—Offices for Administration Men Only—The New Hampshire Delegation Visit the White House—Reception, Incidents, Scenes, Etc. Etc.

WASHINGTON, August 17.—The New Hampshire delegation to the Philadelphia Convention called upon the President, and presented the following address and resolutions:—

Speech of Mr. Bowers. On behalf of the delegation, Hon. C. B. Bowers said:—

Mr. President:—As chairman of the delegation from New Hampshire to the Convention recently assembled in the city of Philadelphia, and which terminated so auspiciously, it becomes my agreeable duty to introduce to your personal acquaintance a portion of the members of such delegation who have come to pay their respects to you, and to express their devotion to the Union and the Constitution of our fathers, and to express our cordial sympathy with and hearty approval of your avowed plan for the safe and complete restoration of peace, harmony, and prosperity throughout the whole land.

I am, sir, also charged with the duty of presenting to your Excellency a copy of resolutions adopted with you and the members of the delegation from New Hampshire, as expressive of their views and desires in respect to the political condition and the course of our States and country in the present crisis. Having discharged such duty I beg to introduce the several members of our delegation, and to give them, in behalf of the interests of our State, a brief opportunity for the informal interchange of opinions.

In conclusion, you will allow me to congratulate you and the friends of constitutional government in all parts of our extended Republic upon the auspicious approval of your public policy, as uniformly and wisely expounded by your conduct and firm determination to maintain our Union, and to preserve so long and so far as possible, in the strict basis of the Constitution, and also to wish for many years of continued health, tranquility, and prosperity to our country.

Mr. Bowers then read the resolutions which had been prepared by the delegation, as follows:—

The Resolutions. Resolved, by the United Delegation from the State of New Hampshire to the Philadelphia Convention, now in session in this city, that the present crisis demands the earnest efforts of both the Administration and the people to rescue the country from the peril now impending over it.

Resolved, that the only way to preserve the Union and the Constitution of our fathers, and to secure the permanent peace and prosperity of the Nation, is to maintain the strict basis of the Constitution, and to resist all attempts to subvert it.

Resolved, that the Executive power of the Government, as vested in the President, should be sustained, so far as practicable, by the Executive.

Resolved, that the Democratic party of New Hampshire, when he declared that he did not desire office for the Democratic party, should be sustained, so far as practicable, by the Executive.

THE DOOM OF THE MATRICEIDE.

Sheriff Russell and his deputies, Messrs. Finch, Tracy, and Lubbe, made all the arrangements necessary on the occasion, and at noon a strong force of military took their station around the jail to preserve order. After religious exercises in the cell, the prisoner was conducted to the gallows. The crowd inside and outside the jail was very large, and the utmost eagerness to catch a glimpse of the prisoner was evinced by all.

At a quarter past 1 o'clock he mounted the scaffold, and, after a moment's prayer, he turned to the crowd and shook hands with some of the officials. On being asked if he had anything to say, he answered in the negative. He whispered a few words to Professor Simonson, who addressed the assembled crowd as follows:—"The prisoner requests me to say that he dies in charity with all his fellow-men, and in the hope of salvation through the merits of Christ Jesus."

The back cap was then placed on his head, and all those on the scaffold, with the exception of Sheriff Russell, executed the steps. The pin of the drop was then removed, and bidding the unhappy man once more good-by, the Sheriff descended the stairs of the gallows, and at three minutes to one o'clock the soul of Albert Starkweather was launched into eternity. There were a few muscular convulsions of the body and then all was still.

The pulse ceased to beat fifteen minutes after the drop fell, and in fifteen minutes more the body was taken down and placed in a box, walnut coffin, and will be given to his friends to-day.

STARKWEATHER LEAVES A STATEMENT. Starkweather has left a written statement in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Finch and his uncle, Nathan Starkweather.

It is supposed that the murder of his mother and sister, but certain poisoning cases and incendiarism at Westchester.

It is supposed that the murder of his mother and sister was but the finale of a long catalogue of crimes which he had committed.

PHILADELPHIA. Mr. Johnson's Opinion of the Action of the Convention.

Mr. Johnson replied that he has now a policy and principles recognized and laid down by the most intelligent, able, and patriotic body of men that has been convened since the days of the Declaration of Independence.

A reorganization of this policy and principles would be required of those who receive office and patronage from the Government. It was a duty the Administration owes itself, that strength and power should be given to those who maintain the principles declared by that great body of National men who met this week in convention at Philadelphia.

The Delegates Satisfied. The delegates expressed themselves highly gratified with what the President had said, and assured him that they would now go down with confidence to the success of the Administration party in their State.

EXECUTION. Hanging of the Matricide, Albert L. Starkweather.

Albert L. Starkweather, the matricide, was executed at Hartford, Conn., yesterday. There is nothing in the annals of crime on this continent, not even excepting the head Probst, that excels in cold-blooded atrocity, unnatural heartlessness, and diabolical ingenuity, the murder of Mrs. Benjamin Starkweather and her little daughter Ella by him who was bound to them by nature's strongest ties.

The Dearing tragedy loses half its horrors before the scene enacted in the little cottage at Oakland a year ago. The son plunging the butcher-knife into the bosom from which he derived his first nourishment, and on which, when an infant, he slumbered; the brother branding over his little sister with the murderous axe-dripping with the blood of their common parent, is a spectacle at which Lucifer himself would shudder. For the murderer no adequate punishment in this life can be found.

THE MORNING OF THE EXECUTION. The prisoner was up the large portion of the night. About 2 o'clock he lay down, and slept for three or four hours. He awoke at 4 o'clock with a good appetite. He then spent an hour or two in company with Professor Simonson in reading prayers and service. He also had an interview of considerable length with his uncle, Mr. Nathan Starkweather. He spoke freely and generally without any great emotion. He was pale and slightly tremulous, but bore up with remarkable spirit, especially considering the fact that every few minutes he could hear the drop of the gallows fall, as the others were trying it and adjusting the cord.

He had for a long time refused to have his hair cut, but this morning he requested that some one might be sent to cut it, which was done. Only a few persons were allowed to pass his cell, and at these he did not often look toward. As he was being taken away, heavily to all others in the jail, and heavy doubts to him. Yet he approached the brink of death without those manifestations of either sorrow or fear that were expected of him.

THE DEATH WARRANT. About eight o'clock Sheriff Russell, attended by the jailer and two or three others, went to his cell and read the death warrant. This ray briefly the facts in the case, stating that he had been presented for trial by a Grand Jury, for inflicting mortal wounds with a knife on his mother, and that he had been tried and found guilty upon these charges, and ended with giving in full the sentence by Judge Hinman. No mention was made in the warrant of the sister Ella, as her murder was not included in the trial. Starkweather preserved much the same demeanor while this was being read as during the rest of the day. The recording of the wounds and gashes inflicted upon his mother did not seem to move him.

APPEARANCE OF THE PRISONER. Starkweather was about five feet seven inches in height, and rather delicate in build and appearance.
